Opus College of Business: Doing the Right Things

Transformation is more than just an ideal at the Opus College of Business. It's a call to action. Transformative learning, transformative teaching, transformative leadership and a transformative experience are all hallmarks of this unique business school at the University of St. Thomas. Through its range of graduate, undergraduate, and continuing education business programs, the Opus College of Business seeks to transform its students' lives and careers while transforming the landscape of the Twin Cities business community.

The Opus College of Business is best known for its innovative MBA programs, each designed to fulfill the needs of a different student population. The Health Care UST MBA prepares those working in health care to lead in a complex industry. The Executive UST MBA develops leadership skills and decision-making abilities in seasoned business managers. The Evening UST MBA tailors a dynamic graduate business education to the real-life demands of working professionals. And the flagship Full-time UST MBA molds high-potential students into ethical business professionals capable of impacting their organizations and their communities.

Graduate business students can also develop expertise in key areas through specialized master's programs in accountancy, business communication, and real estate. For dedicated professionals interested in lifelong learning opportunities, the Opus College of Business provides non-degree programs and courses designed to address key competencies and cutting-edge issues in the global marketplace.

Supporting and enhancing these programs are an array of centers and institutes that act as policy and thought leaders in the region. The Center for Family Enterprise, John M. Morrison Center for Entrepreneurship, and Small Business Development Center, for example, link the entrepreneurial needs of the business community with the expertise developed over St. Thomas' long history as a leader in business education.

The college's location in downtown Minneapolis affords graduate business students with access to the business community, including the 19 Fortune 500 companies in the Twin Cities area. This proximity enlivens an already vibrant learning environment, adding real-world relevance to a sound business education.

In all it does, the Opus College of Business never forgets its vision: to educate highly principled global business leaders. In an era where business decisions impact more than the bottom line, doing the right thing becomes more than a slogan. It becomes the right thing to do.
